school and Grex club. This will be the second game between the fives this season. The opening contest was won by the Grex club by a narrow hargin, and the school boys, who have had a number of games and considerable practice since that time, are determined. Many in Danielson were made happ with Christmas dinners and gifts from the Benevolent association, which ha been collecting funds in aid of the needy during the days preceding Christmas. About 25 baskets were sent out and in every instance brought joy to those who received them. The contributions to the Christmas rubber game necessary later in the ting this year were quite liberal. From the jars distributed in various stores about $20 was collected, from the kettle about $10 and from private sources about $10 more.

Savings Institute GERMAN TRUST PRODUCTS ON MANY CHRISTMAS TREES Most of the Ornaments Used Are

Made by a Syndicate. Washington, Dec. 25.—Christmas trees in hundreds of thousands of homes throughout the United States Consul General Frank Dillingham has just reported to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce the existence of a combination among the manufacturers of Christmas tree decorations in his district.

Most of the ornaments used in Christmas tree

Most of the ornaments used in Christian countries for Christmas tree embellishments are made there.

About 75 per cent of the manufacturers, says Consul Dillingham in his report, "are members of a syndicate which was formed to prevent competition among themselves and to establish standard of prices for scilling their manufactures. The syndicate agrees on one price for each style of ornament, which its members must strictly adhere to in all sales, be they for German use or for export to America or other foreign lands."

The industry supports a large population throughout Thurtingia, says Mr. Dillingham, and the work is almost entirely carried on in the homes of the manufacturers or in small shops.

Few packages arrived here crushed or broken and, fewer complaints than ever were received, although there were some.

The sale of stamps was exceptionally heavy. Of the one cent variety about 15,000 were disposed of, most of these being placed on souvenir post cards that were handled through the office.
The business was ahead of that of last year and other years in all ways.
Danielian people were well satisfied with the service, although there were some delays, due to late arrival of trains, over which Postmaster Potter

The Fishing Fleet.

And there you have the truth "bout men and things. It's not what they are that matters: it's their relative position to you. Get a thing in the right perspective, the proper distance, and it is beautiful. (Did not Emercor say that somewhere?) So I shall not try to beautify the world; I will try to As I write this I am sitting on the sands at the beach at Puys, which is small village near Dieppe, in France. It is one of those mornings when the CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION sea and the sky seem to be trying their utmost to tell me how beautiful the oul of God is, who made them. Never was so andacious a green as is there in that smooth water, and never so deep and dark a blue as that of the thunder-cloud above it.
